DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5, 7-11, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ludolph et al. (USPN 5943053), hereinafter simply Ludolph.

2. In regard to claim 1,7, Ludolph teaches a method and computer readable medium, comprising: receiving one or more information attributes (data in a window) to be applied to an object (window); see col.1 lines 55-60; determining if the one or more information attributes in are in contention with one or more geometry attributes of the object; and when the one or more information attributes are in contention with the one or more geometry attributes, (the panel size may be compared to the amount of data in that window panel), see col.1 lines 60-64, modifying the one or more geometry attributes to reduce the contention with the one or more information attributes (manually and automatically change the size of window panels); see col.1 lines 65-67, col.2 lines 15-30, wherein the geometry attribute is a visible defined geometric space on a display and the information attribute is related to data presented within the visible geometric space. See Fig.1.

3. In regard to claims 2, 8, Ludolph teaches a method and computer readable medium, wherein the contention between the geometry attributes and the information attributes is reduced (expanding and contracting the size of the window without contracting and expanding other window panels in the vicinity) without modifying the information attributes. See col.2 lines 53-56.

4. In regard to claims 3, 9, Ludolph teaches a method and computer readable medium, wherein the modified one or more geometry attributes are proportional with the one or more information attributes (the contents within those window panels are consequently reformatted and redrawn to fit within the window panel). See col.2 lines 20-25.

5. In regard to claims 4, 10, Ludolph teaches a method and computer readable medium, wherein the geometry attributes (sizes) are derived from the object (window). See Fig.1

6. In regard to claims 5, 11, Ludolph teaches a method and computer readable medium, wherein the geometry attributes (sizes) are derived from an input image of the object (window). See Fig.1

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 6, 12, are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

8. Claims 13-22 are allowed.

9. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The closest prior art shows changing window sizes which has data within the window but does not disclose a texture map generating code to combine the new geometry attributes with the one or more information attributes to create a texture map to be applied to the object. The applied texture map having information attributes to be applied to an object.
